Dear Sir,

Mr. Fairbanks requests me to inform you that Esquire Cushman told him to tell me to inform you that Esquire Fairbanks and Esquire Cushman want you to come down with the team tomorrow to attend to some business of importance, or in other words Mr. Fairbanks intends to take steps to gain possession of the house that Reed now occupies.

I presume your absence will be necessary, it is not likely that you will be detained more than one or two days.

Mr. Almon S. Richards

Yours in haste
T. S. Holcut
